WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Dry and warm weather is expected through the coming week with the weather pattern dominated by high pressure. Night and morning low clouds are expected most days at the coast.

San Francisco Weather:

A warming trend will bring above normal daytime temperatures to the area tomorrow as high pressure builds over California. A gradual cooling trend is then expected to begin Wednesday as the ridge of high pressure begins to break down.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY

Sacramento Weather:

High pressure moving over the western U.S. will bring fair skies and well above normal temperatures most of the week. A weak Pacific low pressure system may break down the West Coast ridge enough to bring a threat of showers to the mountains by the end of the week.

Hanford Weather:

High pressure will provide generally dry and warm conditions with temperatures running around 10 to 15 degrees above normal.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION: (Con't)

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

A warming trend will continue into Tuesday as a broad high pressure system moves over the region. A warm and dry air mass will persist through at least Tuesday and then a cooling trend will develop as a low pressure system approaches the California coast by Thursday.

Extreme Southwestern California Including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

High pressure will bring much warmer weather early this week. Slow cooling and continued dry weather for Thursday. A weak low pressure system for Friday and Saturday will bring cooling and a return and deepening of the marine layer with night and morning coastal low clouds and fog. Warming will resume for Sunday and Monday.

Southeast California Weather:

Strong high pressure will build into the region resulting in dry weather and a steady warming trend through the middle of the week resulting in much above normal temperatures. There will be little change for Thursday and Friday. Cooler temperatures are expected over the weekend as a dry low pressure system moves through.

Situational Summary – 2014 Drought

Information as of 4/4/14

On January 17, 2014 Governor Edmund G. Brown proclaimed a State of Emergency and directed state officials to take all necessary actions to prepare for drought conditions. The State Operation Center (SOC) is activated to implement objectives in support of the Governor's priorities. The lack of winter rain and snowfall has resulted in extremely dry conditions in many parts of the State. Reservoir levels are down significantly from where they should be on average for this time of year. If conditions continue without substantial rainfall, severe impacts to municipal water supplies, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities are likely in store for the State over the next few months. Negative economic impacts will also result.

Another storm moved across Northern California on Monday and Tuesday, with low-pressure conditions creating additional storms through Wednesday. Storms will move east beyond California between Wednesday and Friday as a high pressure, dry system builds over the region.

As our state's rainy season nears its end, much of California has received only about half of normal precipitation for this rainy season. Heavy rain and snow would have to fall throughout California most days in April to reach average annual rain and snowfall levels, which is highly unlikely. Even with such precipitation, California would remain in drought conditions, due to low water supplies in reservoirs from the two previous dry years.

The drought could result in severe impacts to the municipal water supplies, wells, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities for several months. The SOC continues to be activated to monitor the situation statewide, and support regional and local operational areas.

Information as of 4/4/14

- The Taskforce continues to meet regularly to take actions that conserve water and coordinate state response to the drought.
- The most recent snowpack survey, conducted on February 27, recorded California snowpack at 24% of normal. The next snowpack survey will be conducted April 1. A more recent update using automated devices shows snowpack at 29% of normal as of March 30.
- DWR has announced that water essential for health and safety will be delivered through the state water project in spite of the zero allocation policy. Deliveries will be boosted if storms produce enough rain and snow to increase reservoir storage and the snow pack.
- Cal OES continues to gather drought-related costs from state agencies and local governments.
